

TOP CELEBRITIES 'SIT' TO HELP GUIDE DOGS

The official launch of Guide Dogs' Amazing Partnership exhibition, sponsored by Specsavers, sees stunning pictures of top celebrity icons showcased at London's beautiful Haunch of Venison Gallery, Burlington Gardens on Friday 5th and Saturday 6th November.

Celebrities supporting the event include Gary Lineker, Amanda Holden and Antony Worrall Thompson who said of Guide Dogs: "It is wonderful that Guide Dogs has started working with visually impaired children, giving them greater independence, freedom, and mobility. The Amazing Partnerships' exhibition is a truly worthwhile event that I am proud to be a part of."

The Guide Dogs' Amazing Partnership exhibition, sponsored by Specsavers, is a one-off event which allows members of the public to visit the exhibition and bid on exclusive celebrity photographs. Vital funds raised from the auction will help Guide Dogs reach the target of building 800 new amazing partnerships between guide dogs and their owners in 2011.

Colette Craddock, Guide Dogs Amazing Partnership Exhibition manager, said: "We're delighted we've had so much interest in the exhibition already, with such fantastic celebrity icons stepping forward to support Guide Dogs. We've made it easy for anyone to support the event by popping along or by calling our number to bid. We're hoping the images showing the partnership between celebrities and their dogs will draw attention to the importance of the partnership between guide dogs and their owners."

For more details about the exhibition, or if you would like to bid on any of the images in the auction, contact major.relationships@guidedogs.org.uk or call 0118 983 8350. To show your support for Guide Dogs Amazing Partnerships, visit www.guidedogs.org.uk/donate